

Habits me and my little sister have:

Slapping her lightly on the face

Us tapping each other's shoulder and trying to dodge them like in her boxing training (it's kind of funny because when I was in kindergarten I was doing karate and now I remember absolutely nothing about them other than that I used to move my leg very high so I was good at kicks)

Her losing her damn mind when I ask our German teacher a question (unless it's actually interesting or funny) in the end of the lesson because the teacher goes on and on and on and on and on

Very Rarely but sometimes we did try moving our legs as high as possible to see who can do it better... in proportion to their size obviously

We sometimes talk to one another in the kitchen and most of the time she tells me to get out of her room as soon as possible

Also she hates me collapsing from exhaustion in her bed while everything's whoopity doo when she's on my bed asking me to do something

Also recently (not THAT recently I mean days or maybe even weeks ago) she told me we should have weekly 30 minute Georgian reading so that I wouldn't forget my native language

And you exactly know what I said to that I have enough trust for you to understand exactly what I said

You're interested what my old sister used to do?

Well... I'm telling it anyway

Her eyes were always half closed when she stared at my soul

She was always a clever smack talker and even with gestures

Like do you know that "I'll keep an eye on you" gesture? Yeah she did that but when she'd turn her fingers on me she'd close them with a cracking sound as if she was ripping my eyes out

I've only seen her act normally with her friends back then

Until the later years when she wasn't acting that way and was just neutral with me with normal eyes and all

Which felt so weird as if who I once knew faded into nothing and now I feel like her when I interact with my little sister

Yet I'm stupid and work WAAAAAAAAAAAAAY less than my older sister does

Like

WAAA
AAA
AAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAY less

Pretty much to the point that I'd be rejected in every job review unless they were looking for a person who wants to make absolutely no difference in the world doing an insanely simple job and having people breathe down at them to make sure they're doing a good job...